Indigenous presence where decisions are made.

Created in collaboration with Indigenous-owned eSupply Canada, Mi'gmaq artist Tracey Metallic, and ergoCentric, Canada's leading ergonomic seating manufacturer, the Waaban chair is both a high-performance seating solution and a symbol of renewal, hope, and Indigenous representation in the spaces where we work, learn, and make decisions.

The Waaban chair—named from the Anishinaabemowin word waaban, meaning “the dawn” or “a new beginning”—marks a milestone in design, culture, and collaboration.

Built on the Canadian-made airCentric™ 2 platform, the Waaban chair delivers more than functional support. It makes a bold statement of inclusion and visibility.

It is designed to be uniquely Indigenous and to stand out in any space.

“This chair isn’t just about the art.
It’s about being seen every day in the places where we are often invisible.”
